Longo says future bright

Waveland's growth to continue in 1982

By ELLIS GUEVAS
The year of 1981 was a banner year for the city of Waveland, according to Mayor John Longo.

In an interview this week, Longo said the growth of Waveland has been phenomenal in the last seven years with more businesses, subdivisions and commercial business coming in our community.

Waveland has come a long way in just a few years. To give you an idea, in 1974 the sales tax share for Waveland was only $10,000. When the final local comes in for 1981 it should be at $40,000, that is a big jump in seven years.

Longo continued, "In spite of the fact that the national economy has been a little gloomy nationwide and whether the Reaganomics will work and improve conditions in 1982, the new year is bright for us."

Bay to eliminate one-half cent tax

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Mayor Larry Bennett reveals Bay St. Louis will eliminate a one-half cent sales tax within the next three months.

The city imposed the tax in Sept. 1979 to pay a $60,000 judgement resulting from the injury and death of James W. Fry, New Orleans. He was paralyzed when he dove head first into the water surrounding the landfill.

unexpected increase in retail sales tax revenues will allow the city to drop the tax within the next three months.

This $40,000 reflects the judgement interest on the judgement and legal fees, he noted.

Diamondhead youth killed in hit and run accident

A hit and run accident New Year's Eve night in Pass Christian claimed the life of a 17-year-old Diamondhead resident who apparently was crossing US-90 from the beach to a party on Scenic Drive.

Pass Christian police speculate Joe Ray Fry of 7812 Duna Place, Diamondhead was struck by a westbound vehicle on US-90 between Courtenay and Dunlap Avenues at approximately 11 p.m.

JOE RAY FRY JR.

When we arrived at the scene there was no fog. Some people said there had been some fog, but we have no proof. I know a fog settled in later that evening," Johnson said.

Cycle, pickup crash claims Shoreline man

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
A Shoreline Park man died Thursday afternoon from injuries resulting when his motorcycle crashed into a pickup truck on Hwy. 803 just south of the Bayou de la Croix bridge at about noon.

Shoreline man David Kaury of the Mississippi Highway Patrol reported Thursday afternoon that Dwayne Schneider, 25, of Route 3, Box 486, Bayou de la Croix, died at Hancock General Hospital in that city from multiple injuries resulting from the collision.

He said no charges have been filed pending a complete investigation of the accident.

Kaury said Schneider was traveling south on the highway at an apparent high rate of speed when he struck a pickup truck driven by the 59-year-old, Route 3, Box 486, Bay St. Louis, which was heading north on the highway and turning left across the point-to-point lane to a business establishment located on the beach.

Schneider apparently hit the pickup truck just before the passenger side door and was thrown several yards into the northbound lane.

Although the pickup truck was damaged, it was not in the line of traffic.

MAYOR LARRY BENNETT
Fry died about a year later.

Bennett said a claim projected that a judgement would be repaid in five years.

He said the judgement was repaid in five years.

Renovation of the Senior Citizens Center with a 100 percent federal grant.

saved the residents some $50-100 million over the initial program which I thought was ridiculous, as it was way out of line."

We placed a lot of emphasis on the wastewater treatment problems. I feel the new program is far better than the original plan," Longo allowed.

In 1982, the mayor looks for some ongoing community development help from the Housing Urban Development Program (HUD).

Longo envisioned, "It looks like we will receive HUD funding for the Civic Center improvements, and we have on the drawing board some extensions to the library in Waveland. All in all, I really believe, and thanks to the efforts of all the people and continued civic pride that exists in Waveland, 1982 will be another great year."

"Looking back at 1981, a lot was accomplished when you consider the pier renovation, streets blacktopped, water line extensions, Middletown rehabilitation program, and sewer extensions in the community," the mayor stated.

"Waveland is right now in the development stages of a $1 million improvement to our water system, even with the extensions in 1981. This is to keep up with our residential and commercial growth," Longo reported.

Longo closed by saying, "I am very proud of Waveland and Hancock County, because we have grown together and there is a great deal of cooperation between all the elected officials. Things look bright for the whole of Hancock County."

MOVING TO BILOXI—James Billet, prime suspect in Thanksgiving Day slayings of three people in the Lestown Community, waves as he is escorted from Hancock County Jail in Bay St. Louis to a sheriff's department vehicle Friday morning by T.P. Naylor, first senior investigator of the Coastal Bureau of Criminal Investigation of the State Highway Patrol, and Ronald Peterson, Hancock County sheriff. Peterson said he District Attorney Albert Neale and defense attorneys requested and were granted permission by Place Two Circuit Court Judge Noble Griffin of Bay St. Louis to move Billet to a maximum security Harrison County prison in Biloxi. The sheriff added that overcrowded conditions at the obsolete Hancock jail prompted the transfer. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

The Veterans Administration is reminding veterans and their dependents that they shouldn't let a lost document prevent them from applying for VA benefits.

Bits 'n pieces

The friend of many dogs and cats of the community will be unhappy to hear about Dr. Robert Akers retirement this week. The veterinarian had been planning for sometime to retire at the end of 1981, and has been a special friend to so many people, as well, since opening the Bay Animal Clinic years ago.

We know the Doc has been having some health problems in recent months and we hope he is now, as the saying goes, 'over the hump.'

It will be good for he and Mrs. Akers to enjoy some of the things they have been unable to because of his devotion to his job while working.

So Good Luck, Dr. Akers, in your retirement, we are very happy you have made this community your home.

We feel you will not be out of the picture all together, as you will probably be helping Dr. James Mahler at times, who has taken over your practice.

So, some of your longtime patients will still get to see you from time to time.

By the way, Doc, we know one special kitty who has been a patient of yours for over 18 years.

There are many things we would like to see accomplished in 1982 for Hancock County.

The most important of all of course will be the filling or whatever it takes to rid the area of the 'deep hole' which has claimed the lives of so many over the years near Buccaneer State Park.

While talking about the State Park, we hope people using the facility will have a much smoother ride in reaching it with the renovation of Beach Drive.

It is our understanding the start of the job is close, but, we have heard that song many times in the past.

A new jail is another item there is a need to look at and we hope our elected officials will continue their investigation into the possibility of constructing a new facility.

We know there is a new jail in Poplarville, (Pearl River County), and it is still vacant, but, we feel the same thing would not happen in Hancock County.

It is hard to believe how far apart the political leaders of our neighboring county are and how bad they get along with each other.

We have to be proud of the cooperation among the county and city political leaders in Hancock County in recent years.

The recent rains have returned some old problems of flooding, especially for the residents of Spanish Acres. Many had big problems Thursday morning because of water in the streets.

Of course, other areas were affected by the heavy downpour caused by the thunderstorm early Thursday.

Many were awakened earlier than normal by the thunder. We were dry so long, and now it looks like we will be a wet sponge for awhile.

One thing is for sure, we have no control over the weather.

Drivers licenses bearing new look

The Mississippi driver license has a new look since Dec. 1 when the colored photo license went on sale.

The new law, being implemented following passage by the 1981 session of the Legislature, will require some changes on the part of the motorist.

Since Jan. 1, those holding licenses whose last digit is an even number, will receive a notice to go to one of the 104 DL stations operated by the Mississippi Highway Safety Patrol to have photographs made and receive the license on the spot.

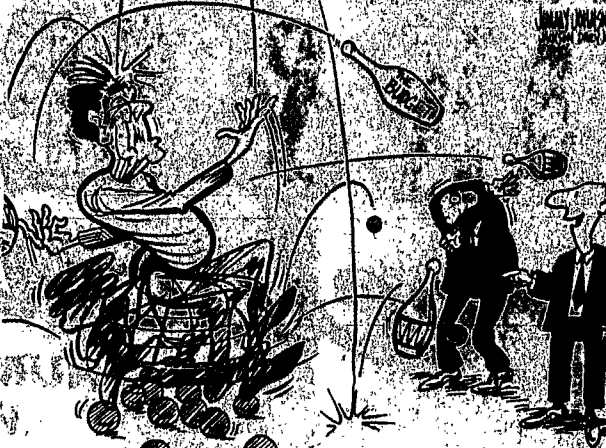

The new colored license will be good for four years and will cost $13. The commercial version will be $21 for four years.

Holders of licenses which ends with an odd digit will receive a notice to renew their license in the same manner as they have previously done in the past.

The 53 new employees authorized for the Highway Patrol by the legislature to implement the new law have been hired and trained and are ready to go to work.

Beginning Dec. 1, all applicants for original licenses began receiving the new color photo license.

Patrol officials urge persons applying for renewals to go to stations during the month of their birthdays for quicker service. Officers urge license holders to avoid long lines by going early, not necessarily on the birth date.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions About Advertising and Business Topics

By S. GALE DENLEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

One of the recurring questions The Bottom Line receives is: How can I get the most value from my advertising dollar? Ray Durbin, ad director of The Greenwood (MS) Commonwealth, addresses the question in a three part series which he sends to his local businessmen.

Part I: Begin with a plan.
Draw up an advertising schedule at least three to six months in advance. 1. To establish proper timing, refer to your sales records. For any store type, merchandise line or items, people buy according to a clearly predictable pattern, and this pattern repeats itself year after year, with only minor variations.

The retailer who reviews his sales records to determine what merchandise customers bought from him in the past will find that his store's sales patterns can provide this important information:

- When customers will begin buying in volume;
- When sales in each merchandise line will peak;
- When sales in each line will taper off.

A good advertising plan is based on these buying patterns. It distributes the annual advertising budget by months and departments, giving each an adequate and balanced share.

Maintain a detailed record of ad expenditures and results to help you decide which ad techniques work best for you.

Others may be to stimulate initial purchases, step-up replacement purchases, attract new customers, increase frequency of visits or length of visits, and number of departments visited.

3. Plan to keep up enough advertising to meet and beat competition. Rival merchants are in every edition of the newspaper. To compete successfully you must tell your story as effectively and as often as they do.

A good plan is a good beginning. However, a plan alone will not insure success. Next week, a few pointers on selecting the right items to advertise.

Lung Association suggests 'no smoking' resolution

Making your New Year's Resolutions? Your Mississippi Lung Association suggests that if you smoke, you may wish to "kick the habit."

There is nothing healthy about inhaling hot smoke into your lungs and there is much to be gained by quitting. During the last three years, one million Americans died prematurely with cigarette smoking-related illnesses.

If you are 30-35 and smoke 2 packs of cigarettes a day, your life expectancy is 8 to 9 years shorter than a nonsmoker's. Safety and economics also enter the picture. Smoking is the number one cause of fires in the U.S. today.

And money-wise, if you smoke a pack and a half a day, you are spending $400 to $600 a year on smoke.

If you would like to quit smoking, you may wish to follow the following tips to join the many Mississippians who have become free of the tobacco habit. If you don't smoke, perhaps you could help a friend "kick the habit."

1. Set a goal date for quitting and make this fact known.

2. Eliminate available sources of cigarettes — make it very difficult (or better, still, impossible) to find a cigarette.

3. Remove reminders such as ashtrays, lighters and matches.

4. Be enthusiastic about your project. You are learning to be a nonsmoker — and the benefits are many.

5. Keep in mind positive aspects of not smoking — money saved, better breathing, a new opportunity for better health.

6. Keep chewing gum, fruit or low-cal candy ready — to offset reaching for a cigarette.

7. Get moral support from others who have successfully quit smoking — and be proud of your success in your endeavor.

8. Learn more about helping yourself to better "life and breath." So, consider giving yourself the "gift of quitting" cigarettes this holiday season — and for free information on smoking cessation, contact the Mississippi Lung Association, P. O. Box 2605, Jackson, Ms 39206. Happy New Year!

TV star endorses Save The Children fund, seeks contributions

December 9, 1981
Sea Coast Echo
Bay St. Louis

Dear Editor:

The 1981 holiday season may remind many of us that some things haven't changed. This year, once again, we feasted upon a traditional (and probably lavish) turkey dinner, watched spectacular holiday parades, gathered around the television set to watch myriad football games and fought crowds in search of the perfect gift.

Some things haven't changed in other parts of the world either. This year, as in years past, people have been forced to flee their homelands, find shelter in crowded and unsanitary refugee camps and suffer the debilitating effects of malnutrition and disease.

In the Northeast African nation of Somalia, close to a million people are living in these camps. They are alive today because international relief agencies are providing them with the food, water and medical care they need to survive. But I am concerned about the dependency this assistance tends to create.

The 1981 holiday season should remind many of us that it is time for some things to change. It is time to put an end to widespread hunger and to dependence upon daily shipments of food.

Some voluntary agencies, such as Save the Children, have taken a giant step in this direction by providing the Somali refugees with the skills and resources they need and want to provide for themselves.

Instead of just handing out food, Save the Children is handing out techniques for growing food and for planting seeds, trees and small-plot family gardens.

The holiday season encourages us to share our love with family and friends. This season let's share our love, caring and concern with members of the human family by helping the Somali refugees regain self-sufficiency.

Any contribution, no matter how small, can help. Please mail your check today to: Save the Children, Somalia Relief Fund, Westport, CT 06880, attention: Valerie Harper.

Reader feels band director's monthly mileage expenses are excessive

Dear Editor:

It is my belief that when this editor prints anything concerning our school system that happens in the district, he is informing us of happenings in the scope of Bay Senior High, Bay Junior High, North Bay, and Waveland Elementary.

According to the municipal school district docket for October, I would guess that indirect travel reimbursement is fast becoming a first priority.

That docket informed us that indirect travel reimbursement ranged from $1.94 to a mere $27.00 to the band director.

Based on government suggested reimbursement figures of 20 cents per mile, that means that band director Glen Page traveled 354.4 miles in October. School operated 21 days at 11.8 miles round trip to all our schools from any given point; that would have been 33.24 round trips for the month or 1.582 round trips each day.

It is beyond comprehension why our children, their brothers, sisters and mothers have to take to the streets every year, knock on doors and beg to sell different items to support band activities — without reimbursement for time or travel expense — while their director is so exorbitantly paid for his travels — above his salary. Over the same territory, plus I see that his yearly supplement — distribution of which I am not familiar — has been increased to $1,200 a year.

I would also like to beg of this editor to allow me to express my contempt for the "RAT" who left his or her pack — garbage — on the street curb at my front gate some time between dark Wednesday, Dec. 23 and early Thursday, Dec. 24.

The law says that before this type can be prosecuted one has to see them do it. Well, who is going to sit on their front porch 24 hours a day watching for litter bugs, but should one be caught in the act, I say a good spanking would surely be more in order than the meager fines imposed.

Just a few days ago this paper had this to say, quote: "Be a good citizen. Wouldn't it be nice to have a clean city for our children to grow up in? Children learn by example, teach your child not to litter." — The Clean Up and Beautification Committee of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce.

It would not surprise me if one day I found out who this unscrupulous person is and it was learned that there was an innocent child in the car at the time of the dastardly act.

Even though the fence and fence lines are still deplorable I would like to thank Assistant Superintendent Donald Caldwell for cleaning up the litter that I complained about in the bus parking lot.

This littering was done by children who were sent during school hours — apparently by their teachers and armed with a broom only — to clean out the school buses.

The clean-up, believe it or not, merely meant sweeping the trash onto the ground, where it stayed to accumulate.

Remember now some of those school buses are driven by some of our school teachers who waded through this litter twice daily, including Mr. Caldwell.

Is any of this anything short of apathy??

Thanks

I received a letter in the mail this morning from Pass Christian, Mississippi, which was a chain letter.

The letter was from a woman named Mrs. J. B. Smith, who was asking me to send the letter to my friends and family.

The letter was very long and contained a lot of information about a disease called "The Great White Plague."

The letter was very scary and I was very worried about my friends and family.

I am writing you to let you know that I have received this letter and I am very worried about my friends and family.

Female attitudes toward work create pay inequities

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, entitled "Women, Discrimination and the Market," by Mackubin T. Owens, program officer at a small grant-giving foundation in New York City, is furnished to The Sea Coast Echo by Public Research, Syndicated of Claremont, Calif.

It is a commonplace these days to attribute every appearance of inequality in American society to "discrimination." A study released by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission last September is a case in point.

The EEOC study claimed that as a result of "discrimination" women are confined to "low-paying" occupations where they are "systematically underpaid." As a means of offsetting the consequences of this "discrimination," the EEOC recommended that public and private sector employers adopt the standard of "comparable worth"—equal pay for "comparable" work.

The problem with this recommendation is that the concentration of women in certain "low-paying" occupations has little to do with "discrimination" in the pejorative sense. It seems to result rather less from discrimination on the basis of sex than from the dynamics of the labor market and the voluntary actions of women themselves. Moreover, the standard of "comparable worth" is rather more likely to hurt than to help those it is intended to benefit.

One explanation for the differences in male-female income is provided by the Family Specialization Hypothesis (FSH). It maintains that, for better or worse, most women tend to marry and to have children. Once married, they tend to subordinate their careers to those of their husbands. This leads to a division of labor within the household.

According to the hypothesis, women tend to specialize in household duties and child care, while men specialize in providing the family with monetary income.

As a result, when a wife seeks employment, she will often consider the effects that travel, hours and working conditions will have on her ability to discharge her household responsibilities.

Thus, the hypothesis holds, many women will sacrifice monetary earnings in order to take a job that will allow them to fulfill their other duties.

The family is also more likely to look at the wife as a secondary wage earner. Accordingly, the wife will tend to prepare for jobs that will be available wherever the primary earner might locate, and which will allow her to re-enter the labor force with only a small reduction in earning power.

Therefore, we observe that women "crowd" into "low-paying" professions like nursing and teaching, occupations which provide them with easily transportable skills.

There are indications that the FSH operates in the "nontraditional" areas of female employment as well. A recent study indicated that female physicians earned considerably less than their male counterparts. Discrimination? No, it happened that women doctors chose to forego a higher monetary income in favor of spending more time with their families.

Of course, not all women are married. But in fact, statistics regarding single women in the labor force support the FSH. According to the Department of Commerce, while the median annual earnings of all women is 69 percent that of men, for single women it is 88 percent.

Thomas Sowell, the iconoclastic economist at the Hoover Institution, as shown by his remarks on the subject of unmarried women in a recent article, would hurt precisely those that they are intended to help. For instance, the requirement that everyone be paid the same beginning salary hurts career-oriented women.

Whereas before an employer might hire a woman over a man while paying her less until she proved herself, now the employer, because of the greater possibility that the woman will quit, will have an incentive to hire the man. Thus, discrimination is increased by such requirements.

One does not need recourse to "discrimination" to explain the employment patterns of women; they can be explained in the context of a division of labor within the family. Feminists, of course, attack the family as it exists, but despite them the family seems to endure.

What is at issue here is that if women's employment patterns are the result of family specialization, any attempt by the government to raise their wages above those set by the labor market, however much it may be motivated by notions of justice and equality, will lead to results destructive of the welfare of women.

Although sex discrimination per se is of minor importance, employers are likely to use sex as an indicator of employee characteristics possessed on average by women.

When a woman applies for a job, a personnel manager cannot tell whether she is "career-oriented" or simply someone who wants a good job for only a year or two.

That personnel manager knows that, according to the Department of Labor, a woman is four times more likely to quit her job than a man.

Her starting salary, will, consequently, be lower until she proves that she is willing to make the long-run commitment necessary to be a division manager or vice president.

On the other hand, "comparable worth" standards would hurt precisely those that they are intended to help. For instance, the requirement

Two aldermen push GOP total municipal officials over 100

Two aldermen have joined the Republican Party, becoming the 99th and 100th elected Mississippi Republicans serving in city government, state GOP Chairman Mike Retzer announced.

Tip Bishop of Forest and Sonny Dean of Southaven, both of whom were previously elected as Independents, announced the switch recently.

"The party's momentum began with our great gains in last summer's municipal elections," Retzer said. "That momentum is continuing as good men such as Tip and Sonny join us."

Municipal elections held last June more than doubled the number of Republican elected officials in Mississippi's municipal government.

Bishop, who is in his second term as alderman, is a 55-year-old farmer from Forest. Dean, 49 is also in his second term, and is a retired military man.

"We welcome Tip Bishop and Sonny Dean into the Republican Party with the realization that as they push us over the threshold of 100 municipal officials, we move ever stronger toward an emerging Republican majority," Retzer said.

Lung Association

"Lung disease strikes any age group," said Mrs. Allen Edwards, president of the Mississippi Lung Association.

"That is why medical research is underway in Mississippi and the nation to find answers for improved diagnosis and treatment of lung problems."

The Mississippi Lung Association is supporting three Mississippi special medical research programs at the University Medical Center. They include: research to determine the effects of environmental pollutants on lungs; conducted by H.M. Mehendele, PhD, associate professor, Department of Pharmacology and Toxicology; and research to determine and measure lung water volume; conducted by Marcel F. Petrini, PhD, assistant professor of medicine, physiology and biophysics, division of Pulmonary Diseases; and research to study ways in which the body reacts to severe lung infections which may be caused by bacteria originating in the mouth conducted by Michael J. Reed, BDS, PhD, assistant dean for research and post doctoral programs, University Medical Center School of Dentistry.

Nationally, the American Lung Association is supporting 47 medical research programs. This is in addition to local research projects supported by Mississippi and other state lung associations.

The challenge is great and problems many, with diseases such as asthma, emphysema, lung cancer, pneumonia, lung problems of the newborn, occupational and environmental problems," Edwards said.

Numerous investigations are underway into causes of emphysema, a disease primarily of the middle-aged and elderly, that destroys lung tissue of approximately two million Americans.

Special lung problems among children 7-16 are being studied. An ALA project is analyzing allergic reactions with expectations in determining causes of asthma.

Another project is exploring pulmonary failure due to surgery, trauma and shock. Problems of air pollution, ozone, chemicals, and occupational health hazards are topics being researched. The list goes on in Christmas Seal-supported medical research projects in the quest for lung health for citizens of all ages and in every walk of life.

"All who respond to Christmas Seal letters with a contribution to the Mississippi Lung Association, know that their gift is helping solve medical mysteries of lung diseases and breathing problems for today and future generations," Edwards said.

Many health ills called arthritis

Control of arthritis requires skilled medical supervision over a long period of time. A sufferer should never rely on over-the-counter drugs or self-prescribed remedies.

Although the cause of rheumatoid and osteoarthritis are still unknown, severe gripping canes prevent the victim from doing the discomfort and pain and if ignored, individualized treatment is indicated.

Rain and swelling can be helped by medical treatment and physical therapy. A physical therapist can help the victim to do exercises which strengthen the muscles and joints and relieve the pain. The American Medical Association advises that patients should be kept warm and dry, except for bathing and exercise. In cold weather, a warm blanket or blanket should be used. In hot weather, a cool blanket or blanket should be used.

He may recommend exercises and physical therapy. Strenuous exercises to prevent deformity may be helpful, as well as a special diet for weight control.

The individual may need help and training to carry out simple tasks, especially for dressing, eating, and when the hand and fingers are stiff.

The individual with arthritis should be encouraged to develop a positive attitude toward his disability without surrendering to it. A sense of peaceful acceptance improves chances for a longer period of comfortable living.

Money Talk

By Norine Barnes

The 1981 Economic Recovery Tax Act will make it easier for you to keep more money in the family, rather than paying it out in estate and gift taxes.

Beginning January 1, 1982, a person is permitted to inherit an unlimited estate from his or her spouse free of federal estate tax. In addition, any transfer of assets between husband and wife, whether it be a gift or an inheritance, will not be taxed.

Heirs other than spouses will also be paying less taxes on their inheritance. Currently, an estate of $175,625 can be left free of federal taxes; estates worth more than that are liable for taxes.

Over the next six years, however, the limit of federal tax-free estates will be increased to $600,000.

These tax changes reverse a 50-year trend in taxation which has aimed to break up wealth and penalize those who inherit large estates. Now families will be more able to keep their wealth, including small businesses, in the family.

For some families, this tax break may be only temporary. While a husband or wife may leave to their spouse an unlimited estate free of federal taxes, when the remaining spouse dies and leaves it to children, relatives, or other inheritors, they or the estate must then pay taxes on any value over the $600,000 limit.

If it sounds like the sums are too large to affect you, remember that you may be worth more than you think. Inflation increases the value of your estate since property, machinery, and other assets continue to rise in value.

Now and over the years, as the taxes and your worth change, you should check and modify your existing will to be sure it reflects the way you want your estate distributed after your death.

After Jan. 1, 1982, fewer gifts will be taxable, and nearly all gifts between spouses will be tax-free. (A gift is an exchange of assets made during your lifetime, as opposed to an inheritance, which the recipient receives after your death.)

After that date, relatives will be able to give money for items such as medical bills and education as a tax-free gift. In addition, gifts of up to $10,000 may be made to any person without federal tax.

There is no limit to the number of people to whom you can make such gifts.

While this change in the gift tax law will make it easier for families to provide for their relatives and support their favorite charities during their lifetimes, people should think carefully before making such gifts and ask themselves these questions:

Whom do you want to benefit? Can you afford to do it now without jeopardizing your own financial well-being? Will the person receiving the gift be able to make the most of it? For instance, teenagers may benefit more from having their education paid for, rather than receiving a large sum of cash.

More than ever families must carefully manage their financial resources to benefit from these tax changes.

MONEY TALK
Have you had trouble discovering how much credit actually costs you?

The Truth-in-Lending Law, officially titled the Federal Consumer Credit Protection Act of 1968, makes it simpler to compare costs of credit. It also helps you know the exact charge for the use of credit from different sources.

When you comparison-shop for credit, learn about the dollar amount and the annual percentage rate.

The dollar amount includes the total charges in dollars that you must pay for credit. It includes such costs as interest, service, or carrying charge, loan fees, and premiums for credit life insurance, or other insurance you might take.

The annual percentage rate is the cost of credit in percentage terms. It gives you a way of comparing credit costs, regardless of the dollar amount of these costs or the length of time over which payments are made.

By knowing the dollar cost of credit and the annual percentage rate, you are better able to decide if you can afford to use credit and which source has the best terms. Comparison shopping for credit may save you a lot of money!

The Truth-in-Lending Law requires that creditors must disclose to borrowers the total finance charge, both in terms of the dollar amount and the annual percentage rate.

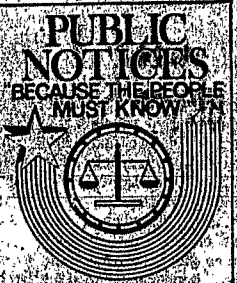

The consumer's cost of obtaining credit may vary from one source to another, depending on the type and amount of the loan, the amount of risk the lender takes, and the special requirements of the lender.

To shop for credit, compare charges among different sources. Purchase credit where the terms and conditions best suit your needs.

Uncommon uses of okra studied

Okra used as a spinach, a coffee substitute or a margarine? Not likely, but real possibilities exist, says a Department of Agriculture horticulturist.

Okra is a long-stemmed crop of the temperate and subtropical tropics. Most consumers know it best eaten whole as "baby okra," or cut up in recipes featured down South in gumbo, stew, fried or combined with seasonings and tomatoes.

But Franklin W. Martin at the Mayaguez Institute of Tropical Agriculture in Puerto Rico takes this controversial plant (some people love its flavor, some hate its mucilage-like texture) many steps further.

Says Martin, "Recent findings show that the okra plant can be used for several purposes, some still in the area of speculation, others already of proven value."

The proof is indeed mixed with speculation, although even when Martin speculates—he has been with USDA's Agricultural Research Service for 20 years—his speculations are tempered with caution.

Proof: —Okra is used as a leaf vegetable in West Africa and Southeast Asia, cooked as a "spinach" or added to soups and stews. It is especially valuable for vitamins A and C, protein, calcium and iron.

—Mature okra pods can be cooked for their seeds and the tender seeds extracted to be used in place of legumes.

—Mature dried seeds of okra are roasted and ground as a coffee substitute or added to coffee. People in El Salvador and Malaysia wake up to caffeine-free okra coffee, said to have a good aroma. Its presence is also said to be very hard to detect when used as an additive in regular coffee.

—Okra seed oil is highly suitable as an edible oil. When extracted by solvents or by pressing in a greenish yellow with a pleasant odor, but both color and odor can be removed if desired. The unsaturated fatty acids, linoleic and oleic, are high (70 percent). It is readily hydrogenated for use as solid shortening and could be used in margarine.

—As a protein source, okra seed varies from 18 to 24 percent. One of the advantages of okra seed as an oil and protein source is the ease of preparation, says Martin. He and agricultural technician Ruth Ruben used a hand mill and sieve in 1979 to separate a high protein, high oil meal from the hull, and showed the usefulness of this meal in baked products.

Speculation: —To make a vegetable curd, similar to tofu made from soybeans, okra protein and oil can be extracted from the hull by grinding the seeds finely in water and straining the mixture through a cloth filter. The protein is separated from the oil and dried in a vacuum oven, leaving a cheese substitute. The vegetable curd was pronounced pleasant by a taste panel in Puerto Rico.

According to Martin, the fiber of the okra plant is a good material for making paper. The large-stalked, rapidly growing West African varieties that cannot flower in the continental U.S. have been investigated and are a source for pulp production; however, the strong woody fiber of the Asian plant ramie is better.

—Martin suggests that the mucilage of immature okra, easily obtained when slices are placed in water, be used to size paper as it is in Malaysia. It is also potentially useful as an extender of serum albumin and as an egg white extender or substitute.

—Thoroughly dried okra stalks can be burned as an inexpensive source of fuel on the farm, although there are more efficient fuel producers. A disadvantage is the fast burning rate of okra stalks, and they may require stoves that concentrate heat produced on the cooking pots themselves, rather than wasted in the air. Such stoves are being developed for the tropics.

—Okra vegetable curd has a possible disadvantage. To avoid possible long-term toxicity, it would be desirable to remove the gossypol from the ground seed.

Gossypol is a pigment toxic to some animals and to humans. However, in cottonseed oil, gossypol is removed with a butanol solution, and Martin urges a comparable treatment for okra seed as one alternative.

However, in 100 varieties of okra tested, the amount of gossypol was less (from unmeasured lows to a high of 200 parts per million) than that regarded as safe in cottonseed meal.

It is possible that gossypol in okra seed will limit the use of seed as a feed or food unless the gossypol is removed, or detoxified, as in cottonseed, or unless okra seed free of gossypol is developed, Martin says.

But he adds that a certain amount of it in okra seed can be tolerated in the diet. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration permits up to 450 parts per million in edible cottonseed flour.

The strong possibility that gossypol in okra seed can be eliminated by breeding merit attention, he says, and cites glandless (gossypol-free) cottonseed as an example.

Glandless cottonseed has already been tested in the U.S. for use in breads and is a promising foodstuff.

Energy Answers From MEEC

Q. I'm looking for the best way to save energy in my home.

A. You can save a lot of money by making a few simple changes in your home. First, check your thermostat. Set it at 68 degrees in the winter and 78 degrees in the summer. This will save you a lot of money on your energy bills.

Next, check your windows. Make sure they are properly sealed. If they are not, you will be losing a lot of heat in the winter and a lot of cool air in the summer. This will also save you a lot of money on your energy bills.

Finally, check your air conditioning system. Make sure it is properly maintained. If it is not, it will be using a lot of energy to cool your home. This will also save you a lot of money on your energy bills.

Corps shifts Pearl River jurisdiction from Mobile to Vicksburg

For the Mobile District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, 1981 was a busy year. Its $453 million workload was the largest ever for this district except for FY 80 which included expenditures of $100 million for Hurricane Frederic cleanup.

The District wound up the year with 1,992 employees. Total construction value of civil design work for FY 81 was $182 million. The design work is primarily for the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway, $65 million, and the Montgomery to Gadsden Coosa River Channel project ($96 million). The remaining $33 million was for design on Mobile Harbor, Jones' Bluff, Tombigbee River and tributaries, and other small projects.

Funds spent in FY 81 on military construction totaled $199 million, and funds spent on civilian construction totaled $134 million, most of which was for Tennessee-Tombigbee work.

Funds amounting to 33 percent of the estimated amount to complete the Tennessee-Tombigbee Waterway have been committed. The navigation structures are 70 percent complete, and overall the waterway is 81 percent complete.

A contract was let in April for construction of the last lock on the 24-mile waterway, Lock E at the upper end of the canal section in northern Mississippi.

Since the waterway was begun the Mobile District has awarded 59 contracts totaling over $75 million, completed 23 contracts at a cost of $192 million and acquired 40 percent of all the land tracts to be acquired.

A summary judgment was granted to plaintiffs in September on claims that a supplement to the Tenn-Tom Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) was required and that a 3 1/2 percent interest rate is no longer appropriate. The order established June 1, 1982 as the date by which the supplement must be filed. A draft of the EIS has been prepared and issued to interested agencies and the public.

Progress continues on the Coosa River Navigation project. Drafts of the General Design Memorandum (GDM) and Environmental Impact Statement have been completed and distributed to state and federal agencies for review. Finalization of the GDM is scheduled for February 1982, and the final EIS is scheduled to be filed with EPA in July of 1982.

The Mobile Harbor study was completed and the improvement project increased in cost estimates from $33 million as originally submitted to $407 million based on October 1981 prices with inflation. Major components of the plan are:

- Deepen and widen entrance channel over the bar to 57 by 700 feet, a distance of about 7.4 miles.
- Deepen and widen Mobile Bay Channel from mouth of bay to south of Mobile River to 55 by 550 feet, a distance of about 27 miles.
- Deepen and widen an additional 4.2 miles of Mobile Bay Channel to 55 by 550 feet.
- Provide 58-foot deep anchorage area and turning basin in vicinity of Little Sand Island.
- Construct a 1,710-acre dredged material disposal area adjacent to the Brookley Industrial Complex.
- The Corps completed a 40-foot-deep ship channel and 100-foot-deep barge canal at Thibodaux on the west side of Mobile Bay.
- The seven-mile-long project connects the Theodore Industrial Park with the main Mobile Ship Channel and was completed at a cost of $30 million. The project was dedicated on August 14.

Construction for the Department of Defense in FY 81 was a considerable portion of the District's entire workload. Construction performed for the Army amounted to $98 million, while Air Force construction was valued at $75 million.

Construction on the Aero-propulsion Systems Test Facility at Arnold Engineering Development Center in Tullahoma, Tennessee, is carried at 95 percent complete with an estimated facility completion date of October 1982.

The Fort Campbell Hospital is currently 65.5 percent complete and the contract cost amount is $38,305,194. Project completion is projected for July 1982.

The Shuttle Payload Integration Facility (SPIF) at Cape Canaveral Air Force Station is currently 5.5 percent complete and is being carried out under a contract cost of $22,565,000.

Power companies were encouraged to store the hydropower energy made available to them, and late in the summer the government began to purchase energy from other sources to replace some of the energy required by the hydropower contracts.

Throughout the past winter, spring and summer the actual production of hydropower was only a fraction of the energy that would be produced in a normal year. Water released for energy production was (and still is) distributed throughout the system of lakes to also fulfill downstream needs.

Maintenance dredging of the navigation channel on the Tombigbee River was discontinued due to conditions and navigation on the river is very limited. Usable depths on the Alabama River have also been substantially reduced.

The National District of the United States Army Corps of Engineers has been authorized to extend a number of the ramps at Lake Lanier where the problem was most severe.

Without unusually heavy winter rains, the situation will continue into 1982.

At Weller E. George Lock and Dam near Ft. Gaines, Ga., a long-standing problem of water seepage has improved with the completion of a test concrete cutoff wall down the center of the earth-fill dike on the Georgia side of the dam. Work was finished on the test section December 4, and while they are unable to put a dollar figure on it, Corps officials believe the wall will lead to large savings of taxpayer dollars due to reduced maintenance costs in the future.

In January 1981 the Mobile District issued permits to Mobil Oil Company to drill four exploratory gas wells in Mobile Bay. By April, Mobile was seeking 38 permits to commercially produce, transport and treat gas from lower Mobile Bay.

A public hearing is scheduled January 7, 1982 at the Mobile Municipal Auditorium to hear public comments on the Draft Environmental Impact Statement for the operation before a decision is made on issuance of the permits.

Honors came to the Mobile District in 1981 in the selection of Colonel Robert H. Ryan, District Engineer of the Mobile District, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers as Mobile's Engineering Societies Council Engineer of the Year. He was named as the best group of engineering

Telling apes apart drives one bananas

Telling monkeys from apes is easy, according to Ranger Rick's Nature Magazine, because monkeys have tails and apes don't.

But telling one ape from another when you're face to face is something else.

To prove its point the National Wildlife Federation monthly publication for children asked its young readers to tell which of these apes is a chimpanzee, gibbon, orangutan or gorilla?

Thigpen felt small kindnesses are life's universal language

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is one of the last four articles submitted to the Seaside Echo by the late S. Grady Thigpen, of Piquette, who had been a regular contributor to this newspaper for many years. Mr. Thigpen died Christmas Day.

"I expect to pass through this life but once. If, therefore, there be any kindness I can show, or any good thing I can do to any fellow-being, let me do it now, and not defer or neglect it, as I shall not pass this way again."

These lines have been credited to a number of men, including Sam Walter Foss. Wordsworth wrote, "The best portion of a good man's life is his little, nameless, unremembered acts of kindness." Kindness is a language the dumb can speak, and the deaf can hear and understand. We may scatter the seeds of kindness and courtesy about us at little or no expense.

Some of them will fall on good ground, and grow up in the minds of others, and all of them will bear the fruit of happiness in our own bosoms. A little bit of kindness, when we are dejected and discouraged is long remembered, and many times is greatly magnified because we are dejected and discouraged. I am going to quote a short story that touched me as I read it.

"One hot summer day in the early 1880's a young medical student was going from house to house in a farming district in Maryland, selling books for the purpose of earning money to pay his college expenses. Near the end of the day, overheated and thirsty, he called at a farmhouse and was met at the door by a bright happy girl in her teens. The visitor inquired of the young lady whether they would care to purchase some books, to which she answered, 'My mother is a widow, and we have no money to buy books,' whereupon the student asked whether she could give him a glass of cool water. Said she, 'We have plenty of milk in the springhouse: Would you care for a glass of cold milk instead?'

"Yes, I would," he replied, "If it is not too much trouble."

"No trouble at all," said the girl running to the spring house. The thirsty student drank the cold milk thankfully.

The girl then offered him another glass of milk to which he replied, "I would enjoy it very much."

When he sought to pay her, the girl protested, "No, no."

"Why not?" he inquired. "Well, my mother always taught us to be kind and hospitable to strangers, and that is what I am doing."

The student thanked her and plodded on his way. Several years passed, and one day, as the head of a hospital in which he performed operations, the one-time medical student, now a widely known surgeon, was visiting the wards of the hospital when his eyes fell upon a face which he remembered well, for he recognized in a moment his former benefactor, the girl who had given him a drink of cold milk on a hot summer day long ago. The patient was too sick to recognize anyone, but he knew her.

Things began to happen. Activity seemed to focus around the woman from the farm. She was moved into a private room, with nurses to wait on her, and everything known to medical science was brought to bear upon her condition. The chief surgeon himself took particular interest in her case.

After weeks of medical and surgical attention, the patient recovered and was able to sit up in her room. One day the nurse said, "You are going home tomorrow."

"Oh, I am so glad," she responded, "but the cost of all this worries me—the bill must be very great."

"I'll go get it," said the nurse, and soon she placed the bill in the patient's hand.

As the woman looked over the items in the bill and read the staggering cost of her operation and hospital care, she wept. "When will I ever get it paid!" she exclaimed, but when she read a little farther down, her eyes caught sight of eight words which dried her tears. The words were: "Paid in full by a glass of milk." — Howard A. Kelly, M.D.

The former young book agent and the great Dr. Kelly, already a surgeon of much repute, were one and the same. Friendliness, and cordiality are close kin to kindness, and make life more worth living for both the giver and the recipient. I have another story to tell you today that I believe you'll like very much. Here it is:

One fine spring day as I walked along the street, I came to a long wide parking strip. Nasturtiums, nestling in a bed of fresh green foliage, covered the entire area like a Persian carpet—orange, yellow, red-of-living beauty.

"Pausing, I stood there, lost in admiration. Then I saw a neatly painted sign: 'Stop and pick a bouquet.'"

Drawing a sharp breath, I looked about me in amazement. Who planted these beautiful flowers? Do they really mean it, I wondered, remembering other gardens with forbidding signs on them.

Still unbeliefing, I looked for a house, and the owner. Instead of a home, there was a service station, and an attendant, who was also the owner.

"Did you plant these flowers?" I asked hesitantly. The man smiled warmly. "I did," he replied. "Right from seed, ma'am. I planted and cultivated that bit of garden spot myself." His pride was apparent. "Help yourself," he invited.

While I stooped and picked the fragrant blossoms, I found I had to question this man. "Isn't the privilege you offer sometimes abused?"

The man shook his head emphatically. "Never!" Then he told me more. It seemed that flowers did much more than brighten the corner of a drab city lot.

The blossoms invited hurrying, bustling passers-by to stop, to be thrilled by a cascade of color and warmed by a stranger's unexpected generosity.

"This little bit of garden does even more for me," the man confided. "My friends were limited because I spend much of the day right here. Now I mingle with strangers who stop to say thanks, and then linger on to chat. I've widened my interests and quickened my sense of being alive."

This strip of blossoms is forever turning up a strange, new type-persons you would never suspect had any interest in flowers at all," he chuckled.

"Perhaps they haven't," I nodded wisely. "Perhaps they pause to pay tribute to a person who is so friendly."

With sudden intensity there came to me a new realization of the value of simple every day friendliness. In this instance, it took a small thing like garden seed and a welcoming sign to create a parking strip of good-will.

On the whole, as you pass along through life, you will find most people are naturally friendly, but many lack the simple opportunity to express themselves or they do not know how to take advantage of such opportunities.

We are not so different from one another. Circumstances, training, heredity can cause us in dissimilar molds, yet we are all members of a common struggling, human family.

Approach a man with an honest desire to be friendly, and he will not mislead your motives.

"Pick my flowers," invited this gracious, friendly man. "Come often, and bring others if you wish."

"Thank you," I returned gratefully.

I was in a smiling pleasant mood as I turned again on my way. Yes, I knew that I would return, if only to freshen my faith in the essential good will of man.

While this friendly filling station gave no sign of being friendly just to get business, the activity at his place of business was most noticeable. During the 15 to 20 minutes I lingered there, his helpers were busy serving one car after another while he, like a gracious host, was greeting in the most friendly way all comers, pedestrians like myself who were buying nothing from him, as well as the customers of his business.

I liked these two little stories, and I thought you might like them.

Open a Hancock Bank Individual Retirement Account, and # CUT YOUR TAXES.

One of the biggest tax breaks in years has come along, and it's waiting for you, at Hancock Bank. It's the Individual Retirement Account—and it just may be the only real weapon you have to beat back inflation and save for your retirement.

Cut your taxes two ways. IRAs have been around for a while now, but effective January 1st, sweeping new changes make them more attractive than ever.

With the new rules, now anyone with earned income can open an IRA, whether already covered by a pension plan or not. And the annual maximums you can contribute to an IRA have changed, too. Beginning in January, individuals can contribute up to $2,000 (up to $2,250 for yourself and non-working spouse). And if you both work, the ceiling goes up to $4,000.

Here's the best part: The full amount you contribute each year to your IRA is tax-deductible. And all the money in your IRA, including interest, is tax-deferred until you begin withdrawing it when you'll likely be in a lower tax bracket.

Tax-deferred savings grow faster.

The money that stays in your IRA account that would have gone to taxes makes a dramatic difference in how your nest egg grows. For example, if you deposited $2,000 every year to your IRA for the next 30 years, that $60,000 will balloon to over $360,000, based on a conservative 10% annual compounded return.

Get the facts.

To find out how to get in on this monumental tax break, stop by any Hancock Bank office. We'll show you how to cut your taxes the rest of your life, with the tax-cut of a lifetime.

HANCOCK BANK

The IRA experts.

* Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal of funds from an IRA. Also, the Internal Revenue Service imposes a 10% penalty on the amount withdrawn, and the amount withdrawn must be included in taxable income.
